

ABSTRACT

BLADE INLET COOLING FLOW DEFLECTOR APPARATUS AND METHOD

An internally cooled turbine blade including at least one deflector extending into an air cavity generally from said first wall towards the second wall for diverting cooling air away from the first wall and generally towards the second wall to thereby improve cooling flow distribution among a plurality of cooling path inlets.